Case Study: Workday and Oracle Business Intelligence

A leading security software company was facing scalability challenges with their human resources department tasked with supporting 21,500 employees. KPI Partners worked with the company to populate their Workday Human Capital Management - HR Management data into a data warehouse where it could be integrated with company financial data. The integrated data was used as the source for dashboards and reports with advanced visualizations within Oracle Business Intelligence. The result was a more efficient human resource function capable of making better HR decisions for the company and their employees.
